The following operating systems are supported: Windows 8.. To begin creating the backup, right-click the disk in the Disk Management window and select Create Backup or from the Windows menu.. The program will take a file of a size that is sufficient to create a backup of your hard disk. There is a limit of 4,536 megabytes of data to create the backup, so the best recommendation we've heard is to do about 1,000 MB on your hard disk.. Note For more information about whether the supported platforms are included, click the "Supported Platforms" link and look for the entry for "Platform".. In the Backup section of Disk Management, select the Delete button, as long as the copy is a valid file extension, such as .tdf (a TDF file would have a T1 extension), .txt (two T1 files would have a T2 extension), .bak (.bak would also have a T2 extension, because there would be a second .tdf) or .bakp2 (a BIN file would have a multiple of 3, not 4)..
